

Call for papers 「Internationalising Limnology」

Dear colleagues of the Japanese Society of Limnology,

This year the Japanese Society of Limnology (JSL) is going to have the first English spoken organized session at the JSL Congress (3-6 Nov 2016) in Okinawa.

The session, entitled ‘Internationalizing Limnology’, aims to provide a platform for Japanese and non-Japanese limnologists to present their research in English to enhance international impact and foster international collaboration. Studies in any field of limnological sciences will be welcome as long as they are presented in English. At the end of the organised session, we are planning to discuss the possibility of proposing a special feature for Limnology.

We wish to encourage you, your students or colleagues to participate in this organized session. Please note that speakers need to be members of JSL and fund their own participation.

If you are interested in participating to this session, please contact Jay Piggott (jeremy.piggott@otago.ac.nz) and Nisikawa Usio (usio@se.kanazawa-u.ac.jp) before 20 July 2016.

Kind regards,
